LIEUTENANT
WADE OUT OF
WORLD FLIGHT*Plane Damaged Beyond Repair and Is Cut Adrift in Atlantic.*SMITH REACHES ICELAND*Advises From Washington Indicate Lieutenant Nelson and Lieutenant Smith, the Commander, Will Be Ordered to Continue the Journey.

By United Press.
ABOARD THE U. S. SHIP RICHMOND, enroute to Transvaar, Faroe Islands, Aug. 4.—Two of America's round the world aviators are safe in Hornafjord, Iceland, while the third, Lieutenant Wade, is aboard the cruiser Richmond, out of the running after an accident.

Lieutenant Eric Nelson, the first of the aviators to reach Iceland, completed his flight without mishap Saturday with his comrades, Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Wade, were forced to return to Houton Bay by a dense fog.

Smith and Wade hopped off yesterday to join Nelson and Smith made the Iceland port after being buffeted by heavy storms but Wade was forced down by motor trouble and his plane "so damaged that he probably will not be able to continue the flight."

Lieutenant Wade was piloting Plane No. 2, the Boston, which was carrying the emergency ration. His mechanic was Sergeant Ogden of New Orleans, the youngest member of the flying squadron. An attempt was made to right the stranded plane but this was found impossible. One of the propellers was broken, the left pontoon punctured and one of the wings cracked.

After towing the airplane for a few miles, officers of the Richmond conceded the plane could be used no more and cut it adrift.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Lieutenant Wade's plane can be repaired with spare parts sent to Iceland from through, Eng., without materially delaying the world flight. Lieutenant Smith and Nelson will be ordered to wait for him, it was said at the office of Major General Patrick, chief of the air service, today.

Leopold and Loeb Began Careers by Cheating at Bridge

By United Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Cheating at bridge was the start of the criminal partnership of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Dr. William Healy, noted psychiatrist of Boston, testified today at the judicial hearing of the millionaire youths for the slaying of Robert Frank.

Another delinquency in which Leopold and Loeb participated was heavy drinking, the witness declared. As for Loeb, his criminalistic tendencies started long before he met Leopold, Dr. Healy said.

"When he was only nine years old he took up the practice of stealing whatever he could lay his hands on. He crawled through windows of neighboring houses and stole such things as expensive vases, things he would not use, just for the sake of being able to get away with it. He also stole many articles from stores and shops about the city. Once he dug up some money another boy had buried in his yard."

Touching on the matter of the association of the boys, Dr. Healy said that criminalistic activities started with an almost childlike compact.

State's attorney Crowe leaped to his feet.

MURDER OF BRITISH WOMAN IN MEXICO
AROUSING ENGLAND

By United Press.
LONDON, Aug. 4.—News of the murder of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, a British subject on a road near her ranch in the state of Puebla, has brought Anglo-Mexican relations to the most strained point in years, in the opinion of British residents here today.

A still note of protest is expected from the British government. Since diplomatic relations between the two countries virtually were broken off several weeks ago by expulsion of British Diplomatic Agent Cummins, because of his activity in the American campaign.

Mrs. Evans was shot and killed Saturday while returning to her ranch with the payroll for her employees. Her manager, a German named John Straus, was seriously wounded. The payroll, amounting to 2,000 pesos, was stolen. It is believed the assassins are members of the Agrarian party who have been persecuting Mrs. Evans for months.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Acting on behalf of the British government, the United States has made representations to Mexico in connection with the murder of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, widow of a prominent Englishman, in Mexico.

The party of officers consisting of the New Salem and Brownsville deputies of state police and Constables Jobes and Wagner conducted a raid in a search for violations of the liquor law. The officers failed to find any contraband goods in making their rounds.

In one of the houses visited, Constable Jobes is said to have picked out the four men as having been members of the mob which attacked him when he attempted a raid some time ago. At that time Constable Jobes suffered injuries to his eyes which laid him up for several weeks. He still is compelled to wear glasses.

TO BUILD UP HUGE
POLITICAL BODY

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 4.—A huge political organization, with 3,000 campaign committees, hundreds of speakers and 3,000,000 active workers will sweep the nation this fall in behalf of the presidential candidacy of Robert M. La Follette. This was decided upon by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor today in a session devoted to arranging details of the political organization.

A publicity committee will print and circulate from coast to coast literature urging the election of the La Follette-Wheeler candidates. The 30,000 local units will be authorized to create separate campaign committees to govern activities in their districts.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 4.—The "conclusions and recommendations" of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor with respect to presidential candidates and platform limits in endorsement to La Follette and Wheeler as men, not as leaders of a political party, it being the purpose of the federation to adhere to the non-partisan policy adopted in 1906. The so-called Progressive candidates are declared to have "stood steadfast throughout their political careers in defense of the rights and interests of the wage earner and the farmer."

Both the Republican and Democratic conventions are declared to have "nominated candidates unacceptable to labor. The platform of both parties are condemned."

"Organized labor," says the report adopted by the convention, "owes allegiance to no political party or group. It is not partisan to any political party or group. It is partisan to principles—the principles of freedom, of justice, of democracy."

"We shall analyze the record and attitude of every aspirant to public office and shall give our findings the widest possible publicity. Labor's enemies and friends must be clearly known and be definitely indicated."

HIS HEAD STRIKES POLE

Irvin Brown, 48 years old, of Monessen was instantly killed yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock near the M. B. Townsend farm at Flatwoods when his head struck a telephone pole as he leaned too far out in an effort to save his daughter, who was thrown out of a runaway automobile that was driven by Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Brown, learning to drive the touring car, got into the seat on the level stretch of the Flatwoods road. No sooner had she grasped the steering wheel than the car began its runaway dash, going into a field on the farm owned by Mr. Townsend. The little daughter was sitting on the lap of her father and when the car shot ahead, was thrown out. Her father, trying to save her, leaned too far out. When his head struck the pole, he was killed instantly. The force of the collision threw him out of the car.

State Old Age Pension Act Is Held Invalid*Special to The Courier.
HARRISBURG, Aug. 4.—The Dauphin county court today held the old age pension act of the 1923 Legislature unconstitutional.

The act created an old age assistance commission with an appropriation of $26,000 for the inauguration of the system, which would provide pensions for persons 70 years old or older whose total property does not exceed $3,000.

James H. Manner, treasurer of the State Federal of Labor, was chairman of the commission of three, which is abolished by the decision of the court. The act was declared unconstitutional because it violates the section of the Constitution prohibiting any appropriation for "charitable, educational or benevolent purposes for any person or community." It was held in the opinion of the court that the act specified that "every person shall be entitled to assistance in old age and thus fall within the constitutional inhibition."

Deputy Attorney General Moyer, who argued the case for the Commonwealth, declared an appeal would be taken to the State Supreme Court.

RAISING CAMPAIGN FUNDS WILL NOT BE
AS EASY AS BEFORE*Both Old Parties and Progressives as Well Will Have "To Bent the Buckles."*SITUATION NOT ALARMING*To the Moneyed Interests Hence the Indisposition to Come Forward With Contributions; somebody Will Have to Get "Mad" to Start Giving.

By ROBERT T. SMALL.

Special Correspondent of The Courier

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Preliminary surveys of the usual "source of supply" are said to be anything but reassuring to the politicians charged with raising the "wind" for the coming campaign. There has been no great rush to contribute to the efforts of either one of the old parties while the Progressives are faced with the necessity of an intensive beating of the bushes.

Nevertheless the strong boxes are being got ready with the confident hope that as the fight goes under way the streams of gold will flow a little more freely.

Both the Republicans and the Democrats are to experiment with new money raising machinery and personnel. The Republicans will miss the guiding hand of Fred Upham, the ex-treasurer. Mr. Upham, single-handed and alone, raised something like $50,000 during his terms with the national committee. That is a record which no successor is likely to equal in the near future. William V. Hoagies of Denver, the new treasurer of the Republicans, is making his headquarters in Chicago and is being given all possible assistance by Chairman Butler. Recently Mr. Hoagies was in New York, where it is expected a goodly part of both Republican and Democratic purses are to be raised.

The difficulty with the situation as it exists today is that the moneyed interests fail to view the outlook with alarm. A calm satisfaction with political prospects seem to pervade the entire financial district and unless a real scare can be thrown into the vicinity of Wall Street, some of the old sources of revenue may prove to be "driers" this year. Treasurer Hoagies has the books of the previous campaigns and also the sources from which the big Republican deficit after the 1920 campaign was wiped out. With those in hand he may be able to do a little forceful talking during the next few weeks.

The Democrats have been hopeful that they would enjoy a faster year than they have known for a decade. Their plans of campaign have been based on that hope. Four years ago they conducted a starvation fight. But just where the bulk of the money is to come from this time no one seems to know. The Democrats have not any books that are of value as a guide to them. In this respect the Republicans have a distinct advantage. Also the Republicans have a long list of "regulars" who have been contributing for years. The Democrats have got in some manner to mobilize the "volunteers."

The slowness with which money is coming in may account in some measure for the lack of speed which is characterizing the campaign. Of course the late dates of the notification ceremonies have had a great deal to do with the slowing up process and both sides are looking for things to burn after the leading candidates officially take the field.

The increased expense of conducting campaigns has kept pace with the general increase in the cost of living and the estimate of $15,000,000 needed to finance the three parties this year is regarded as a modest one.

Yet, unless somebody gets "mad" the task of raising this sum is going to be a hard one. A spiritless, colorless campaign evoking little enthusiasm anywhere, is not calculated to stir the pursestrings of the country. Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate special committee on campaign contributions, is waiting for the first reports to come in. It is felt he will not be lousy for a long time. It would not be fair to represent either the Republican or Democratic national committees as worried over the financial outlook, but they would be just a bit happier if the old coffers were a bit heavier.

Pimples

BLOOD impurities are pumped by the heart into the face. That is what causes that grainy appearance, that redness, sallowness, pimples, blackheads, acne, red spots, and that "something" which no face cream, massage, or face powder can cover up or beautify. But increase your red blood cells, and quickly the ruby tint of purity begins to glow in the cheeks, the complexion becomes rosy, the skin is clear and beautiful. Try it. It will do it every time. S. Leopold and Loeb

Began Careers by Cheating at Bridge

With a demand that Dr. Healy tell the nature of the compact, I shall be glad to tell it if chambers," Dr. Healy replied looking at Chief Justice Caverly and indicating the story was unprintable. Caverly, however, insisted on being told from the witness stand. Justice Caverly then waved the state and defense lawyers to the witness chair and all grouped themselves about the witness while Dr. Healy whispered his story.

Median Loeb is so egotistical that he considered his dignity more important than his own life. Dr. William Healy a Boston attorney, testified before Chief Justice Caverly today.

Dr. Healy the second of the defense medical experts, said he found through many examinations that Leopold was an intellectual giant far surpassing the normal youth, but was lacking in normal emotion.

"I found Leopold considered preservation of his dignity far greater importance than the preservation of his life," Dr. Healy said. "He considers his 19 years of life well spent and in case he is sentenced to hang he wants to tell the world his philosophy, both through an autobiography and a farewell speech."

Leopold the doctor said, shows remarkable intellectual capacity in a series of tests. He said he considered it truly remarkable that a youth of such great opportunity should throw away his chances for the small reward he received in personal satisfaction for the crime.

The only humane way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orshead White which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck and arms. It is not irritative. It brings out your youthful skin and gives white complexion skin as a fresh sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Advertisement

200 MILLIONS IS INDIANS' DEMAND

Chickasaws Will Press Claim for Payment for Land in Oklahoma.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Payment for 4,000,000 acres of land in Oklahoma once designated as a "ceded district" that now has a value of probably $200,000,000 is to be asked of the United States government by the Chickasaw Indians according to Douglas H. Johnston, governor of the Chickasaw nation who returned recently from Washington where he requested the nation's looking after the interests of his people.

In a controversy out of which a suit for payment will grow, the involved a doubtful construction of a treaty made in 1863 between the Chickasaws and the United States government and the price of land exhibited by the Chickasaws when they declined to adopt freedom—negroes who have been slaves of the Indians—as members of the tribe, a consequence of which is that the Chickasaws have remained singularly free from intermixture with the negro race.

The leased district in what later was Oklahoma territory, covered lands once occupied by the Wichita and affiliated tribes. The Chickasaws held that contract covering it were lease contracts. This was an opinion expressed by the Court of Claims when the matter first was appealed. The United States Supreme Court, however, held that contracts involved conveyance and that the lands were sold. The area was turned over to the government as public domain and sold to settlers for many millions of dollars.

"Under the treaty of 1866," says Governor Johnston "the Chickasaws and Choctaws 'ceded' these western lands to the United States for certain purposes. These purposes were among other things for the settlement of friendly Indians for the removal of Chickasaw and Choctaw freedmen and the settlement of such members of the tribe as might desire to remove thereto. The treaty also provided for a fund of $300,000, which was to be paid to the tribe in the event of the removal of the freedmen. It was provided that the Chickasaw and Choctaw freedmen were to be removed if the tribe failed to adopt them within two years, in which event the $300,000 was to be used to remove the freedmen. The tribe adopted such freedmen within the time specified they were to have the benefit of the $300,000.

Freedmen Never Adopted. "The Chickasaw freedmen never were adopted. The tribe never has claimed nor has it ever received any part of the consideration. Whether the Choctaw freedmen legally were adopted always has been a question. "Certain friendly Indians were set out on these lands under the provisions of the treaty. The right of Chickasaws and Choctaws to additional compensation for the land so used has been established by the action of congress in its direct appropriation of money for the payment of the same to the tribes. This money was paid out in 1898 and the tribe was referred to the leased district payment. The lands for which compensation now is asked were comprised in the same area. "The Indians hold that they made a lease and not a conveyance," says Governor Johnston. "The great difficulty of the language of the treaty was sufficiently uncertain to support conflicting opinions of the courts."

Boy Scouts Demonstrate Worth of Preparedness

Boston Mass.—A group of boys unable to help their injured comrade and a pair of boys who were arrested to administer first aid are paid for their services in a recent demonstration of scout preparedness for emergency. James West of this city white out for a day in the woods with some companions was accidentally shot in the leg. The wound bled profusely while his frightened companions stood helplessly not knowing what to do.

At this moment, Scouts Francis Adams, Hoyt Larson and Tom Barnard, out on a hike appeared on the scene. Scout Adams took charge of the situation and sent his chums for help. He fastened a tourniquet on his neckerchief and stopped the flow of blood. Cutting bandages he improvised a stretcher and with the assistance of the other boys started for home with the wounded lad. They had gone only a mile when they met the boy's father, who had been notified of the accident by the scouts and was hurrying to the scene in an automobile. He took his son to the hospital.

WHITE LILY

Your Protection Mark on Choice Hams and Bacon, and other Meat Products

Try 'em They're Different

The Family Favorite—White Lily Ham

It pays to buy a standard, reputable brand of ham because you are sure then of its quality—such as White Lily. White Lily Hams and Bacon are as perfect and uniform in quality as science can make them—you can rely on the next one being just as good as the last—and this means GOOD HAM ALL THE TIME.

The reason is in our careful selection of porkers—in their care and smoking, and special treatment that makes it unnecessary to parboil White Lily Hams for frying.

Tenderness and flavor are the outstanding qualities of a good ham—and White Lily Hams are always tender and flavorful. Sometimes cost a cent or two more per pound but are worth double in the satisfaction they afford. U. S. Government inspected, too—this is important.

Your dealer can supply you regularly. And buy them whole—a White Lily Ham will supply good meat for the family for a week.

PROSPERITY NOT FAR AWAY.

Evidence is accumulating that an improvement in business and industry is in process of getting under way. True, the progress made is scarcely noticeable, so far as outward signs go, but that is the course of becoming increasingly plain in some quarters. This is particularly observable in the west. There the large crops and the increase in the market prices for farm products, upon which the prosperity of the Middle West so directly depends, is stimulating all lines of business to greater activity than has prevailed for a long period. Merchants are especially encouraged at the change in the situation, while other lines are beginning to feel the stir of new life.

This condition is already being reflected in iron and steel. Despite the fact that this is the period of seasonal dullness in the trade, steel production is at a slightly higher rate. The blowing out and banking of blast furnaces has been halted, the present indications being that the number in the running will shortly be increased. The period that is taking place in the west must in the very nature of things exert an influence in other sections. This may not occur for some time yet, and may not be felt at all places simultaneously, but in sections having industries closely associated with iron and steel the effect will sooner or later become manifest.

When the blowing in of blast furnaces takes on any considerable proportions, and is distributed over the country proportionately to the equipment in the various iron and steel centers, just to name a few, there will be a corresponding increase in the production of coke, both beehive and by-product. This will mean greater demand upon the coal mines, both for local consumption in beehive coke making and for shipment to the by-product plants.

Already there has been a gain in the tonnage moving to the by-product plants. The completion of the addition to the Clairton plant of the Carnegie Steel Company is requiring heavier shipment from the mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company which ship by river. Over in the Greene county extension of the Connelleville region two large mines which are sources of supply for by-product plants have resumed activity. In other sections of the region there has been a perceptible increase in inquiries for coal. That many of the prospective buyers betray a desire to close contracts promptly, while the producers are indisposed to do so at current prices, is rather substantial proof of confidence that the market will shortly be better, from the sellers' point of view, and that demand will become heavier as fall and winter approaches.

Considered in its larger aspects the situation may quite truthfully be said to be encouraging. The more fact that there is a more optimistic feeling and that slight improvement has already taken place in some quarters, the more definitely forecasts that an era of prosperity is not far ahead.

A "MOBILIZATION" THAT WAS NOT PROTESTED.

The agencies and persons who are so violently protesting against "De-Buss Day" on September 12 have been strangely silent with respect to a "mobilization" which was called for last week.

To show sympathy with the objects of the National Council for Prevention of War to stage "a demonstration against war," the Communist Workers Party, acting under instructions from the Communist International in Moscow, Russia, issued orders "to all units of the Workers Party" as follows:

"The Communist International has called upon all Communist parties the world over to organize great demonstrations and agitation against war and militarism and against the social patriotism of the Social Democratic parties on the tenth anniversary of the great world war. The week from July 27th to August 4th has been set aside for these demonstra-

"The Central Executive Committee of our party, in order to give support to the world wide demonstration of the Communists, it calls upon all party units to immediately mobilize their strength and to organize themselves for a week of agitation and demonstration against militarism, imperialism, war, and for the social revolution and the triumph of the workers."

Not a voice having been raised against this "mobilization" of Reds, are the pundits willing that their silence shall be construed as meaning that they have taken common ground with the disciples of Lenin and

Iceland: Atlantic Stepping-Stone for Airmen

"It is not a town, but only a tiny coastal fishing village, where American airmen have come to rest on their first stop in Iceland," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Hofn, a town of 1,000 people, has two points in its favor as an air station: It is within a mile or so of being the closest Icelandic point to the Faroe Islands whence the airmen are flying; and its waters are almost landlocked. Another valuable feature is the ease of finding the place. A few miles inland, behind Hornafjordur rises the white, snow-capped Vatnajokull, one of the highest points in Iceland."

"Hofn, the other Icelandic stopping place of the flyers is near the southwestern corner of the island, facing Greenland. This community of 15,000 inhabitants is the capital of Iceland and the only place on the island that can claim the title, 'city.' Throughout the 100 years of Iceland's occupancy by people of European extraction, it has been practically a country without cities. Life has centered in the scattered farmsteads, many of which today are somewhat feudal establishments, sufficient to themselves. The characteristic farm buildings are enclosed in a god and appear to be set partly in the ground."

"No grain can be grown because of the short growing season. The farmers raise turkeys and potatoes, but give most of their attention to Trotting in an effort to sort out America."

The plan to which membership is worthwhile and which does not endanger good standing in a community, is the Family Plan.

The State Game Commission might have gone a step farther and made hunters' license plates in the form of steel jackets instead of aluminum tags, thereby helping to reduce the casualties of the hunting season.

We used to call Monday Wash Day. Now it is the day for the publication of Sunday automobile casualty lists.

Chicago's famous murder trial has reached the "brainstorm" stage although the lawyers call it by other equally foolish terms.

Defectives

Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

In spite of the effort to be optimistic and keep the faith that all's well with the world, the story of the two youthful defectives as it unfolds day by day in the Chicago court is full of shattering impressions and interferences. It is a tale of horror, through which shines not one glimmering ray of light. Man under strong passion has done gruesome things before now. Ignorant and stupid, besotted men have rushed into crime with animal fury. Poor men, driven by evil circumstances, have sunk to bestial levels.

But that young man barely loosed from their mother's apron strings, affluent and smart and studious, should stoop to a monstrous crime, apparently without motive and for the sheer cold, devilish enjoyment of the thing—the grisly business stops all theories and shuts every mouth.

Leopold and Loeb are defectives, of course, but that solves no problem. The question that appalls is: What of the wealth and schools and colleges which collaborated in the production of two such conscienceless young villains? How do these two examples indicate traces of spiritual barbarism in sections of the rising generation?

It is impossible to isolate the boy murderers and view them merely as exceptional cases of youthful depravity. They are bound to become the text for a moral and spiritual inquiry. Society must know the whence and why of such a shocking collapse in the morals of youth and seek some adequate antidote.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

THIS QUIET PLACE.

Never a banging door to hear,
Never a sudden shriek or fear,
Never an eye with a glancing tear
Or a sorry face to see
Never a noise when you want to dream,
Never a shout and never a scream
Never a cry that might lovely seem,
But it wouldn't be home to me.

"Never," says mother, in a shrill to mead Never a terrible fight to end;
And no one your pennies to want to spend,
What a sweet spot 'twould be!
Never a hurt that a kiss will heal,
Never a battle for oart or wheel;
Oh, that might be nice, but I somehow feel
That it wouldn't be home to me."

Never a shout from the city street
And the noisy patter of running feet,
And the cry: "Hey! what can we do?"
And never a cookie apert;
Never the racket that children make,
The toll they cause and the blame;
Any break
Just two old folks in the house!
Land's sake,
That wouldn't be home to me!

So think of this when they start their noise
And clamor for cookies and break their toys;
Wherever you find little girls and boys
They'll argue and disagree;
They'll keep you jumping the live-long day,
But if you hadn't them there to play
And your house were still as a tomb
Oh, it wouldn't be home to me."

DICKERSON RUN LEAGUE OUTFIT LOSES TO NEWELL

Defeat Is Third for Yough Valley Team Since Beginning of Season.

OTHER NEWS OF THE DAY

Special to The Courier.
VANDERBILT, Aug. 4.—The Dickerson Run P. & L. E. team lost its third game of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie League Saturday when the crack Newell outfit whitewashed it, 1 to 0, in one of the best games of the year, played at the Dickerson Run grounds before a large crowd. Durbin twirled for the home team and allowed the visitors but five hits. The Yough Valley outfit couldn't hit in the pinch although it garnered seven hits.

The fans were given an excellent exhibition of baseball and for the first time this year a game without one foul by either team.

This evening the railroaders play at South Connelleville, meeting the Captain Independents.

Germany Has Real Tea Pot Scandal

By United Press.
BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The Prussian state is now experiencing a violent tempest in, or rather over, a teapot. In this case the tempest centers not around a teapot alone, but around china teapots and other porcelain products of the former royal porcelain factory.

The Nationalist party members of the Prussian diet claim that the factory sold some of its precious wares to state and central government ministers at special prices, hinting at graft.

Their original accusation named Reichsmaster Gossler and Hoeft as beneficiaries of the reduced prices, while a second attack centered against the Prussian State Commerce Minister Biering. The Nationalists accused him of appointing as head of the factory a Dr. Schneider, who, they said, not only made special prices but was not expert in conducting the business.

It was explained that special prices were offered some time ago to all permanent customers of the factory and that the ministers benefited in this bargain sale, without however, the granting any state or moral aid.

The Nationalists' onslaught is intended to disrupt the existing Prussian state government so that the Nationalists can come into power in the state again, as they have long desired to do.

Within His Rights.

"What! today is no more of a legal holiday than it is day before yesterday?" asked a disappointed motorist who stopped at the crossroads stop and post office.

"It is too!" responded the combined mailman and postmaster. "I made it one, and the other. If I can't make my own holidays, what is I to do?"

Actress Bound Herself to Obey Minister.

Pretty Mary Savage, screen actress, who had her own producing company in New York at the age of nineteen, gained much popularity. Then she met the "Rev." John Burroughs Clark, of Los Angeles, with whom she signed a contract binding her self to consult Clark in every detail of her business and social life, and to obey his every order. For four years she was out of the world. Now she is back in New York, in seclusion, but Clark is in a Los Angeles jail on other charges.

FARM POULTRY

FOUNDATION STOCK OF FUTURE EGG LAYERS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The buying of baby chicks is a far more important problem than most purchasers realize. Baby chicks constitute the foundation stock of the future layers and breeders and, therefore, too much care cannot be exercised in deciding upon the hatchery from which to buy.

Officials of the United States Department of Agriculture have observed that practical poultry raisers and farmers are relying upon the hatcheries more and more each succeeding year as a source of supply for their new crop of chicks. In other words, each year sees fewer and fewer chicks hatched under hens and the mammoth hatcheries are taking the place, to a certain extent, of the smaller incubators which are commonly operated on the farms. It is because of the fact that farmers are buying baby chicks from the commercial hatcheries in such large numbers that the officials of the department feel the necessity of urging them to exercise great care in deciding upon where to buy this year's supply of chicks.

At the same time it should be pointed out that many farmers, perhaps the majority, will still find it more economical to do their own hatching. This is especially the case where the farm stock is of good standard quality and has been bred for egg production. A farmer hatching his own chicks knows the quality of chicks he can expect.

The commercial hatchery business has developed to a very remarkable extent in the United States in the last two years. Some of the hatcheries now have estimated that practically double the number of baby chicks will be hatched in mammoth hatcheries this year compared with last. There is a great increase in the number of hatcheries, each varying in capacity from a few thousand to several hundred thousand chicks.

The question of importance to a purchaser of baby chicks is the source of supply of eggs for the hatcheries. Many of the hatcheries have their own hatcheries well organized, and are able to guarantee the quality of the chicks. Some of the hatcheries, however, are not so particular where they purchase the eggs they use and are not able to guarantee high-quality chicks.

Purchasers of baby chicks should be well advised, officials of the department say, to make sure of purchasing from a reliable hatchery. Only pure bred chicks should be bought, and in addition to this the purchaser should insist upon a satisfactory statement from the hatchery man as to the quality of eggs used. Were the eggs from a standard-bred stock with true parent records and was the stock in good breeding condition? Purchase baby chicks with great care. It is better to pay a few cents more for good quality chicks that can be guaranteed.

Practical Suggestions for Getting Clean Eggs

The increasing number of graded eggs that are shipped makes it necessary that every practicable means be employed to keep eggs clean. The greatest help, outside of clean straw on the floor and in the nests, is a screen shutting the hens off the roosts during the day. A screen made of poultry netting is tacked in the morning and remains down until time for the hens to go to roost. Cleaning the dropping boards daily will not help so much as the use of one of these screens.

An added advantage of the fact that a hen on the floor is encouraged to activity. The hens that spend any great portion of their time on the roosts are fit subjects for colds and roup.

The practice of placing perches a foot or so above the dropping boards tends to soiled feet, soiled perches and soiled eggs. The hens, instead of walking on the perches, walk on the dropping boards and their feet become badly soiled.

Gathering eggs twice daily is also a help in producing cleaner eggs. By all means supply a plentiful number of nests. Eggs laid on the floor are invariably soiled. A nest may have eight or ten clean eggs in it and the entire number may be soiled by the hen laying the next egg.

High Value of Milk for Increasing Yield of Eggs

Milk fed to laying hens brings better returns than when fed to hogs, according to Purdue University. Returns at that station show that the increase in egg production gives a return of $1.82 to $5 per hundred pounds of milk fed to hens. Feeding of protein to hens will usually increase the egg production of a hen about 100 eggs per year as compared to hens that do not receive a protein supplement.

Milk cannot be compared with other forms of animal protein such as meat scraps and tankage wholly on the protein basis, since its palatability, ease of digestibility, and general availability on the farm must be given consideration.

For chicks, milk is almost a necessity since most people can raise chicks easier and better and with less mortality when given as a liquid diet.

Poultry Notes

The wise poultry raiser knows that early hatching catches the best profits.

Young chickens should be kept out of the sun on hot days or they will suffer from the heat.

Gather eggs to be set often and keep them in a cool, dustless place, turning them twice daily.

The dirt floor in laying houses is a carrier of disease, unless five or six inches of the soil are removed and replaced each year. Board floors are all right, but expensive. Concrete floors are the most economical in the end.

You can count your chickens before they hatch if you observe carefully the correct principles of egg selection and incubation.

Milk is a very valuable feed for baby chicks, since it contains the vitamins so essential to growth and also protein required in a ration.

The thermometer used in the incubator should be tested to determine whether or not it is recording the temperature accurately.

The more ventilation allowed the more the egg evaporates. Skill in running the incubator consists in balancing these two factors so the eggs do not smother or dry out.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Broken China.

One Mother Says.

I never could say little girl when she drops a piece of china, as the nervous shock she receives from the crash is usually punishment enough. If the crash occurs because of her carelessness and dreaminess I talk with her about how she must be careful about mother's china and if she will hold it just so, and be sure to wipe her soapy hands before picking up a plate, there will be no more accidents. I found that scolding her severely did not work, and it is an equally poor plan to pass over the accident without letting it make an impression on her.

Boundary Dispute Causes Uneasiness in Great Britain

Special to The Courier.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—J. H. Thomas, colonial secretary, will go to Dublin tonight to confer with President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State on the boundary dispute between the Free State and Ulster. It was announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The general Irish situation was described as unchanged and observers believed it was fraught with the grave possibilities for the government of Prime Minister MacDonald.

Fair Enough

Rents were exceedingly high in that part of the city in which the young couple felt they had to live. After looking at apartment after apartment they began to get discouraged.

At length, after looking at one that just suited them, they expressed indignation when the agent told them the rent would be $150 a month.

"I can't ask less because of the view," the agent said.

"Well, I'll tell you what we'll do," the young husband replied, "You knock off $50 a month and we'll sign a contract never to look at the view."

Skirt Is Shorter; Make Wider Hems

Season's Fashion Applies Principally to Tailors, Authority Says.

Rich in color and embroidery, many of the fashions recently displayed at the various important model houses have proved of more than ordinary interest, says a writer in Costume Royal.

Paris is showing costumes with soft fitting coats of contrasting hues. In Paris the same idea prevails. Last season some sort of apology was offered by designers for this unannounced amalgamation of colors, and one found an embroidery theme woven upon the coat, with the dominant color echoing that of the skirt, which somewhat softened the dissonance, but we have nothing of the sort. The skirt may be brown and the coat green, and that and it, and if at first it seems a little jarring, one quickly becomes accustomed to it.

These remarks apply more to the tailleur. The afternoon suit still adheres to three-piece effects, with the coat linings and blouse trimmings usually matching.

At Lucille's display there was a decided trend for costumes in muted-colored fashions, trimmed and lined with black satin.

Skirt lengths are certainly shorter and skirt hems wider this season; that is to say, the hem of the tailleur; the widest insertion of plaits insure this.

Afternoon dresses, on the other hand, are shown made with tight underdrapes sometimes so narrow that difficulty is experienced in walking. This is rather surprising, as, aside with the fashion able circular or plaited panel fronts, they give an impression of spaciousness. Jumper frocks and costumes, on the other hand, are the epitome of comfort, and have created a great success.

Another outstanding delightful feature is the scarf. It is everywhere and worn with every type of dress. In the evening a scarf is a more wisp of tulle, or, perchance, a ribbon, while in the afternoon it may form part of the dress decoration; not that it is actually attached to the dress itself, but is related in color and fabric to the decoration, and so becomes an indispensable accessory, and is used with the dress.

Thus this separate scarf is left to the artifice of the wearer to arrange as she pleases; such trust on the part of the dressmaker is often sadly betrayed, though in cases it is more than justified.

A scarf also may be an integral part of a hat; lace hats for restaurant wear are wonderfully enhanced by a trailing wisp of tulle or floating ribbon and which coyly encircles the neck or may form a kind of veil. Scarf collars to coat and evening wraps are another innovation. The evening silhouette is still very slim, usually flat and straight at the back and draped a little to the front. Much ingenuity is expended on the neckline, which can be cut quite high in front and low at the back, or be fashioned with a drapery swathed over one shoulder, while often a corage is held with a single diamond strap. The deep armhole is still shown and so is the button neck. Embroidery usually adorns one side only of a gown, as the idea of asymmetry appears to have departed from the dressmaker's program and the whimsical notion of using a pony or a scarf to arrive at a balance is employed in stead.

HER IDEAL

"Marry me," cried the poet, "and be my inspiration."

"What's that?" asked the girl.

"Be my inspiration," he repeated.

"You mean I shant have to cook or scrub?" she asked eagerly.

"What's the idea?"

"Well, I'll consider it, I'll consider it. You certainly have the right idea about married life."—Los Angeles Times.

Capstan Easily Defeats Touted Fairmont Elks

First Game of South Connellsville in Semi-Pro Ends in 7-1 Score.

OTHERS ARE PROBABLE

Featuring into semi-pro circles for the first time, the Capstan Independents, in a sensational battle, defeated the touted Fairmont Elks yesterday at Monaca, W. Va., by a 7 to 1 score. Alexander was invincible, being in excellent form. His control was excellent and his curves completely baffled the hard-hitting outfit that was content with the seven hits allowed them. The ace mountaineer ran his string of victories up to 23 without a defeat and boosted his strikeouts up to 237 by breaking seven. Spectacular fielding and two double plays helped the Capstan mountaineers wonderfully, killing several attempts to rally. Davin's work behind the bat was fine. The plucky little backstop pulled Alex out of a hole in the fifth with one score across and three on the bases with none out. Davin took a foul in the home team's dugout and completed a double play on the next play. Dushaw to Ralston to Davin. The crowd, numbering 700, cheered the local boys throughout the game. Acting as Trainer in the fourth inning for one run and in the fourth and sixth, the "glass blower" sent him to the club house by sending four markers off of four hits in the seventh frame. Byrd relieved him on the mound and held the local outfit scoreless. Several offers were received from the leading semi-pro teams in West Virginia for Sunday games. The Capstan outfit being an excellent drawing card in the mountains.

West Newton Plays at Scottdale Wednesday

SCOTSDALE Aug 4—Too late for the local management to arrange with another team for a ball game on Saturday, the Fairmont Elks cancelled with the Scottdale Independents. Baseball fans were without amusement on Saturday. Wednesday West Newton will be here.

Pirates in Second Place. The Pittsburgh Pirates went into second place yesterday when Emil Yde hung up his eighth victory of the year by defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers 5 to 2 at Brooklyn. Grimes opposed Yde on the mound. Cooper and Osborne are the hurling selections for today.

The Detroit Tigers went into first place in the American League by defeating the Yankees 5 to 2 in a game at Detroit yesterday. Pennock twirled for the Yankees while Whitehill worked on the mound for Ty Cobb.

West Newton won from the National Tube Company by a 13 to 6 score Saturday. Wednesday, West Newton will play at Scottdale in the second game of series.

The Uniontown Elks walloped the Cumberland Colts 11 to 4 at the county seat Saturday.

ONE

The drama of a young wife whose innocent affair with another man developed a scandal, with amuzing results.

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"THE BROKEN WING"—The feature picture today and tomorrow at the Paramount, presents Kenneth Harlan and Miriam Cooper in interesting roles.

Picturagoers who are looking for something different should not fail to see "The Broken Wing," one of the most successful Broadway plays of recent years, is now on view. The original stage play by Paul Dickson and Charles W. Goldsboro obviously contained all the elements necessary to good "picture stuff" but its producers have done what too few producers do—they have made the most of every situation, the manuscript is rewritten and here reduced them to colloid with every foot a thrill, a laugh or a tear.

An airplane flight serves as the keynote of the plot which takes an American aviator into Mexico. The subsequent crash when the wing breaks and his mechanical falls, furnishes a thrilling moment that few films have ever equalled. Our hero falls in the main room of a Mexican ranch house—a direct answer apparently to the pretty little Latin maid's prayer for a foreign husband. Suffering no ill effects from the accident
beyond the total loss of his memory, the young American beats the local bandit terror to his by marrying her, only to return and find his American wife whose existence he had forgotten, waiting to take him home.

Wednesday and Thursday, Betty
Blythe will be seen in "How Women
Love."

The Soisson

"THE REAL ADVENTURE" on view today, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Soisson, is truly a photograph of marriage. It is the second starring vehicle of charming Florence Vidor.

Henry Kitchell Webster's popular novel proves rich in melodramatic material, starting with the chance meeting that leads to marriage after a very hasty but romantic courtship.
Before the honeymoon wanes the wife discovers that she shares only her husband's heart, not his brain. She is his mistress, not his partner.
He thinks that in giving her his love he is giving her everything. When he will not understand her attitude, she leaves him, saying she will come back when, by her own efforts, she has done something that will make him respect her and want her friendship,
as well as her love.

Miss Vidor, beautiful and intelligent always, is very convincing as the girl who passes through the transition period from the ideal of first romance to the bold facts of stern reality. She wears some beautiful gowns—and designs some for others.
A Chicago rain and a mountain snow storm; a hunting lodge, a luxurious home and back stage in the theatre provide a variety of backgrounds for the telling of the story.
Thursday, Friday and Saturday,
Harry Carey will be seen in "Tiger
Thompson."

The Orpheum

"THE GUILTY ONE," a Paramount picture with Agnes Ayres, popular screen star, appearing in the stellar role, opened today at the Orpheum for a three day attraction.

It's a Joseph Bonomo production, adapted from the stage success of the same name in which Pauline Frederick made such a hit in the leading role. Critics acclaimed it a masterpiece of suspense and this same quality makes the motion picture even more absorbing.

The story is told with an ambitious young man who attempts and her husband by cultivating the friendship of an influential man. Her husband and brother are led to believe that she plans a secret rendezvous with this man and proceed to his apartment separately to save her.

A mysterious crime is mysteriously committed. In finding the guilty one a tremendous new twist is discovered with a smashing climax.

Edward Burns, recently seen opposite Gloria Swanson in "The Hunting Bird" has the leading man's role in "The Guilty One" and heads an unusually capable supporting cast which includes, among others, Cyril Ring, Clarence Burton, Crawford
Kent, George Seligman, Thomas R.
Mills, Dorothea Wolbert, Stanley
Taylor and Catherine Wallace. Anthony Colbyway adapted the story for use on the screen.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday
"The Fighting Coward" will be shown.

"Axon Gray made a business trip to Scottsdale a few days ago

The change in Pauline's manner, when Gerald was ushered by an untidy-looking waiter into her sitting-room on the following afternoon, was almost electrifying. In place of her usual languid greeting, she sprang lightly to her feet and gave him both her hands. The slight sultriness had all gone from her face. There was no living person just then who would not have found her beautiful.

"You received my telegram?" she demanded eagerly.

"And I came to you at once," was the prompt reply.

She drew him down to her side upon the sofa. Her manner and tone displayed an animation entirely new to her.

"Remember returned the night before last," she said. "He seems to have had a comparatively easy journey, and he reports conditions over there very much more lenient in many ways. He had no difficulty in landing or in making his way wherever he wished to go. On the other hand, the stories he brings back as to the distress and misery everywhere are simply shocking. The country bleeds to death. There are few trains running, no order, no discipline; despotic and arbitrary police surveillance everywhere. But there is also corruption. People, especially the official classes, are looking everywhere for the means to live. A merchant who was imprisoned only a few days so ago on a charge of murder, to which he actually pleaded guilty, was set free the day before Reusser left. It cost him little more than five thousand roubles."

"Did this man Reusser discover where your brother was?" Gerald asked.

"For ten thousand roubles," she answered. "He could have searched every police register in Russia. Paul is at the fortress of St. Maria, at a small town called Sokar, about three hundred miles south of Petrograd. It is a bad journey, of course, but the place is accessible. The governor of the province is a Major Krossmeyer. He is half an Austrian and half a Pole. When he is drunk he is reckless. He is to be managed with care, but always it is to be remembered that Paul is his chief prisoner. If Paul were to escape," she went on thoughtfully, "he would, without a doubt, lose his post, certainly his promotion; he might even have to flee the country. To buy him would probably cost a sum of money sufficient to support him for the rest of his life. There are still people who would tear Paul to pieces if they knew who he was."

"This Major Krossmeyer," Gerald inquired, "does he speak French?"

"Fortunately, yes," was the eager answer. "Tell me, Gerald, what do you think of it all?"

"Just this," he replied. "I shall sail on Tuesday. There is a steamer from Hull. In less than two months I will bring your brother back."

Her eyes shone. She seemed to be trembling in every limb. There was ecstasy in her face, passion on her quivering lips. Yet even as he drew a little nearer to her, Gerald was dreading the moment that she had almost forgotten his presence. It was the thought of her brother which had wrought this transformation.

"If I bring him back to you, Pauline," he began.

"Bring him back!" she interrupted passionately. "I make no bargain. I give no promise—you should know better than to ask for any such. All that I can tell you is that I would give my soul to see him again."

Gerald clenched his hands almost in pain.

"Pauline," he pleaded, "for heaven's sake, soften just a little. You keep me all the time in torment. Paul shall be set free—I swear it. If it costs me my fortune, my liberty, even my life, he shall be set free. But I'm doing it for love of you. My love is choking me. Soften for one moment. Remember what you will be to me some day. Give me, at least a memory to take with me."

She laid her hand upon his. It seemed to him that it was as cold as the snow. Her eyes looked into his. They were soft and beautiful, full of color and sweetness, yet they looked through him as though he were a denizen of some other world.

"When I give, I give all," she said. "You do not understand the people of my race. We cannot give in dribs and drabs here, a carcase there, the promise of more tomorrow. God never made Russia like that. When I give, it will be the full story of love. Bring Paul back to me and you may know what that cost me."

Gerald rose to his feet.

"I should go to my task a stronger man," he complained, a little bitterly. "If you could throw me the dice one might give to a beggar."

She gave him her finger tips. She was standing by his side, so near that he desired to hold her in his arms and take from her lips the one kiss he craved was almost irresistible. At that moment he almost hated her.

"Haven't you even the grace to pretend?" she laughed, wringing her fingers slightly as though his lips had seared them.

"You have been spoiled," she murmured. "The women you have played with have been your too willing slaves. A trifle of homage, a trifle of philanthropy, a few madcap caresses—that is all you have known of love. Wait!"

Gerald spent that afternoon in the city, the next few days in making last-minute preparations for his absence from London. On the afternoon of the last day, he was permitted to see Reusser, and he recognized in him at once the man whom he had seen watching over Madame de Fontenay and her niece in Hyde park. The meeting took place in the sitting-room of the South Kensington hotel. Reusser, who leaned heavily upon two sticks, his son, who waited for him outside the door. He was as thin as a skeleton, his cheeks were sunken, and every now and then his voice seemed to die away.

"It is my first day out of the hospital," he told Gerald apologetically. "I caught cold on the way back, and my lungs are not good. Please ask what questions you desire. I am subject to attacks of weakness."

"I understand," Gerald said, "that you reached Sokar?"

"I reached it," he admitted, "but, alas! I was powerless to act. I took with me every penny of money we could scrape together, but by the time I reached the city I was penniless. I lodged at the house of a saddler, whose name you will find in the book I have given you. He took me to look at the fortress. He showed me the room where the brother of mademoiselle lies. He told me much about Major Krossmeyer, the commandant of the fortress. But of what avail was it? We had not enough money between us to pay for a bottle of wine."

"How do you propose," Gerald inquired, "that I can approach Krossmeyer?"

"The way is arranged," Reusser replied eagerly. "There is a woman living in the town, half German, half English. Her name is Elise Franck. Today Krossmeyer is her slave. You go first to her. Her address is in the little book you have. She speaks English and French, besides her own language; even some Russian. Talk to her frankly. She will bring you to Krossmeyer. There is one thing, though. You must go as an American. No one will do anything to help you, unless they are all greedy for money. If they think that you are English, it will be quite easy, that. There are many Americans in Russia, prospecting. There is a great oil field on the plains south of Krossmeyer. Some say there is oil there; others deny it. That is how your bribes must be worked. You will buy property. It will be worth nothing. You will find that Krossmeyer has land to sell; so has Elise."

"I understand," Gerald said.

"You leave tomorrow?"

"At ten o'clock from King's Cross," Gerald answered. "The boat leaves at night."

Reusser raised his right hand.

"The Father of God speed you!" he said. "Speed is very necessary. The government has kept that young man living, hoping that some day he would be useful as a bribe or a hostage, but there are still many families in Russia, haters of his race, who would tear him limb from limb if they knew."

"I shall be in Petrograd in a fortnight," Gerald declared, "and at Sokar, I hope, a few days later."

Reusser once more raised his hand and muttered inaudible words. Nevertheless, though his strength seemed departed, he tried to kneel when Pauline came into the room. She raised him to his feet and called to his son.

"All is well," she said, dismissing them. "Take care of your strength, Reusser. You must be one of the first to welcome him."

The man bowed his head and prayed silently. Then his son led him away. Gerald also rose to his feet. He had bowed himself for this interview.

"I shall have the pleasure of wishing him a hearty farewell," he asked.

"My aunt sends you her excuses and her prayers," Pauline replied. "She is too agitated to risk a meeting. You do not quite know what this means to us."

"I know," Gerald said, "what its results may mean to me."

She looked at him a little sadly.

"My unhappy country," she sighed, "is today only a furnace of woe and suffering, yet in the jungle of it there are a few millions still who would kneel through the night and pray for you, if they knew your mission. I bid you farewell, Gerald, and every throb of my body will live with you. I have sworn that no word of love shall pass my lips, nor any feeling of love linger in my heart, so long as my brother lies in that fortress. But I am here. I would give you anything that would speed you on your journey. It is for you to choose."

She stood perfectly passive, her arms hanging by her sides. Her eyes looked sadly into his, her lips were composed and still. For a moment the breeze burned in his blood. He took a quick step forward. She waited, unmoved, yet without shrinking. So they faced one another for a moment. She extended her hand. Gerald seized it, then dropped it.

"I shall do my best," he promised eagerly. "Goodbye!"

Simplicity Marks Coolidge's Life; President Keeps His Modest Home in Town Where He Rose to Fame

HALF THIS DOUBLE HOUSE IS COOLIDGE HOME IN NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

Simplicity and reserve are outstanding characteristics of Calvin Coolidge. Of humble origin, he has risen to the heights along a self-blazed trail, without evidence of pomp or circumstance. Even after he had attained high public office, it was his desire to live modestly as a "plain American" and as an inspiration to those who bear his name.

Always the former boy, the nation's Chief Executive retains his keen affection for Vermont's rolling hills and never is he more content than he is at home among his own people.

"Vermont is my heartland," he has said. "There one gets close to nature, in the mountains, in the brooks, the waters of which hurry to the sea; in the lakes, shining like silver in their green settings; fields filled not by machinery, but by the brain and hand of man. My folks are happy and contented here. They belong to themselves. Here within their income and fear no man."

The modesty of Calvin Coolidge has been manifested throughout his career. When he first went to Northampton, Mass., to Boston, an obscure member of the State Legislature, he sought out an humble room on the upper floor of a hotel. There he found the seclusion he loved and the arrangement satisfied his idea of life. After his service in the State Legislature, where the majority of Massachusetts selected him as a candidate for governor, those who notified him of his nomination found him in this same unpretentious place.

And after his election, the family home in Northampton, half of a modest two-family dwelling, raising for thirty-four dollars a month, was retained. Coolidge might have been

Country Children Handicapped, Says Nation's Educators

NEW YORK (United Press)—The rural school is the chief defect in the educational system of this country, according to educators from many states who have been participating in a series of lectures and conferences at the summer session of Columbia University.

Lack of properly trained teachers, relatively large illiteracy in the population, child labor and limited high school opportunity were stressed as handicaps of country life.

Of the 300,000 rural not villages, 120,000 have completed a high school course. It was brought out by Prof. Mahol Carney of Teachers College, County superintendents, Prof. Carney pointed out, are still elected by popular vote in twenty-five states.

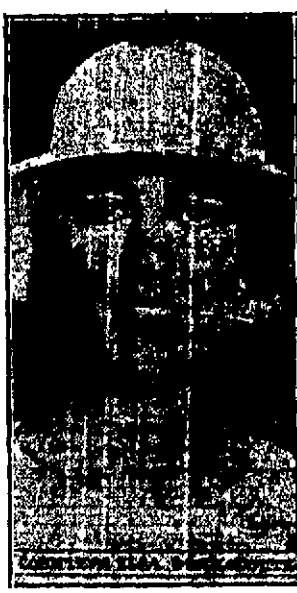

Prof. Carney, after an exhaustive study, concludes that rural school attendance is greatly influenced by child labor on the farms. The total number of child workers from 10 to 15 years of age in the United States is 1,900,000, of whom 743,600 or 71.8 per cent are engaged in agricultural pursuits.

The number of Americans living on farms is 31,000,000, or about one-third of our total population, concluded Prof. Carney. "The population living in villages of less than 2,500 is 9,000,000. Of a negro population of 11,000,000 more than 75 per cent can live on the land."

"The expenditure per capita for city school children is about $30. The expenditure per capita for rural school children is about $44."

"City children enjoy longer school terms. The average rural school period is 137 days. Illiteracy is greater in rural territory than in urban centers. The rural percentage is 7.7 and the urban percentage 4.4. Despite obvious handicaps rural education it was said, in making progress, particularly since the report of the country life commission appointed by President Roosevelt. The country or rural school superintendent was characterized as one of the most useful agencies of the American state.

Dr. Ernest Burnham of the Kalamazoo, Mich. normal school said that there was a lack of appreciation of teachers by farmers. The average annual salary of rural teachers, he said, was only $72.9.

Fall Millinery Whims

ONE thing all these new fall hats have in common. They are as small, as sleek and silky, as ever, and still smarter and varied. Artistic draping, an unexpected quirk of the fabric, an ornament or patch of embroidery cleverly placed, gives the brims a becoming irregularity.

ALL of the high spots of the mode are reflected in this collection. New Silks, New Felts. Touches of velvet colors and brims are high on modish fall hats. An outstanding feature is the high, squared-off crown, and the roll brim effect that is rapidly replacing the typical cloche style.

TALBOT, Maria Guy, Reboux and other famous French milliners set the fashions followed by these fall hats. Come and see the clever things achieved with velvet, tulle, tulle ribbon and felt. Then choose your favorite from a selection priced from $6.50 to $25.00.
